The film is built from a tipping point that leads us imperceptibly from day to night, fleeting a moment where what was is gone, where things can take another meaning. Many voiceovers that cross the portable telephone on the telephone, speaking of ghosts, guide us through the city, while the camera seems in search of a plot of land, a concordance story - image. The topography of the place is built and moves in parallel with another topography, mental it up, maybe they meet somewhere here in a new psychological space. A personal story carries through the city of Seoul, for us to follow and choose the field of interpretation : truth, storytelling (urban) ...
